

A Curriculum that Nurtures the Ability to Shape the Future

BEYOND Tomorrow brings together young people who have overcome adversity—such as abuse and loss. Their experiences of pain and struggle become a powerful foundation for empathy and for spreading compassion throughout society. We aim to nurture future leaders who transform their experiences into strength, embrace diverse perspectives, and help shape a better future. That is why we have designed a curriculum that emphasizes not only the acquisition of practical skills, but also the cultivation of personal growth, empathy, and emotional intelligence.

The ideal leader: A global leader who can guide society toward a better future both in Japan and around the world, with empathy

- Someone who transforms personal adversity into strength and deepens their thinking through compassion for others
- A person who listens attentively to others and builds consensus toward better outcomes
- Someone who understands and values diverse perspectives and sees issues from multiple angles

Program Objectives:

- High school scholars: To recognize their potential and develop the ability to express themselves fully.
- University-level scholars: To explore how they can contribute as global leaders shaping Japan's future, and to develop the ability to take initiative while engaging others.
